Dear Colleagues,

Crossing from bench to bedside or vice versa is a tremendous challenge already. How much more to combine this with an even further crossing of fields?

In a tour de force our new Vice Dean of Science, Prof. Dr. Esther von Stebut-Borschitz, went from the two distant clinical phenotypes of psoriasis and cardiovascular malfunctions to basic science and back to the clinics.

We cordially invite you to attend her talk “Psoriasis and cardiovascular comorbidity: lessons learned from a translational project from mice to men”, to vividly enrich the subsequent discussion with your aspects potentially even far beyond these two topics, and to share with us pretzels and wine this time in the leisure space of the Oratorium of the deanery building.

As usually, please register early via:
